

Parent Participation Model and Framework

Plain English Version

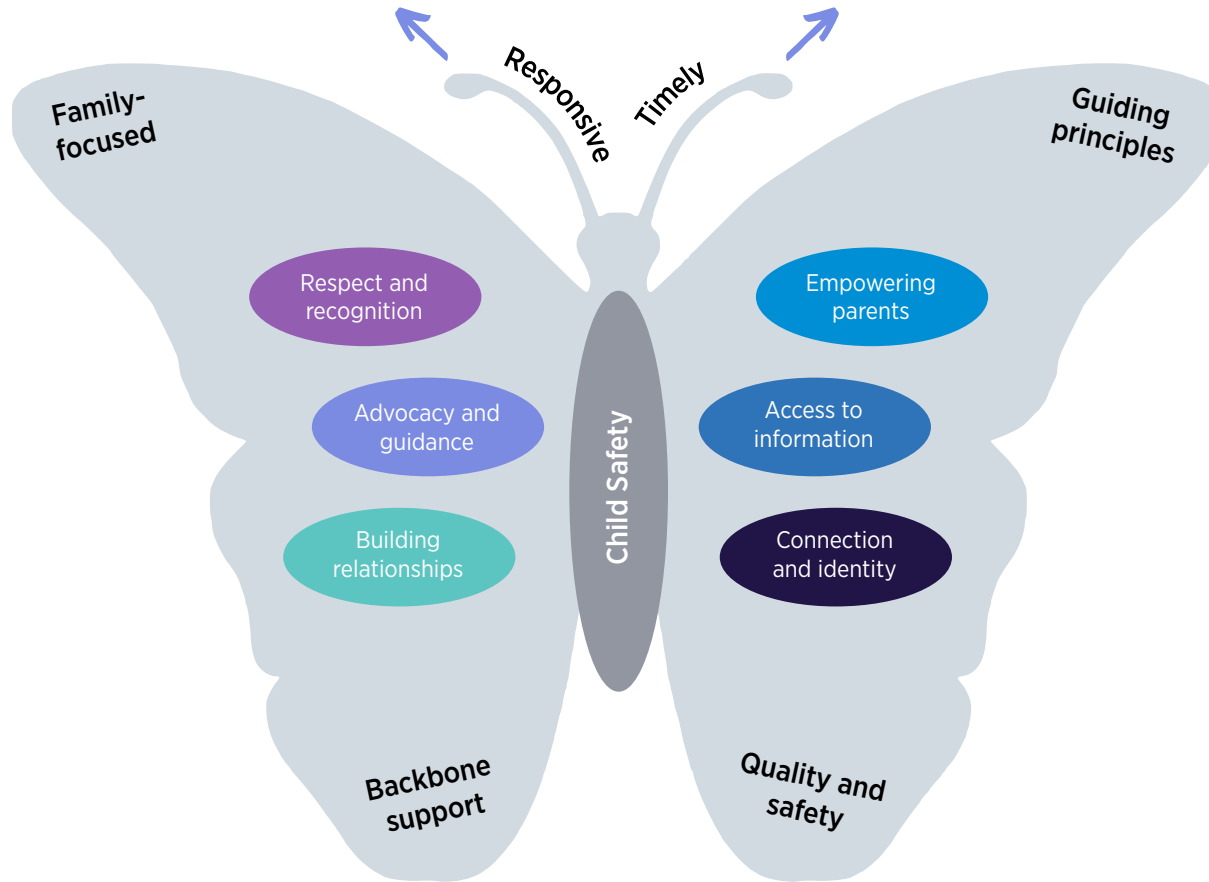

You can ring or email your worker and get an answer.

Things should happen as fast as possible.

What you think and feel matters.
You should feel respected.
You should feel listened to.

It is okay if you need help.
You can have a friend, family member, or worker with you.
You can ask questions.

Try to get along with your worker.
They should help you to trust them.
You both want the best for your child.

You have important things to say.
You know your family and child.
You can help your worker get to know you better.

You are allowed to know what is happening and why.
You are allowed information that is easy to understand.

You are still a parent even if your child is not with you.
You should stay connected to your child so long as it is safe.

Awareness of unconscious bias (for example: racism, sexism, ableism)

It doesn't matter if you are different. Your differences should be valued.
All parents should be treated with respect.